There is scarcely any noise in a submarine when submerged. The greatest depth the boat descends does not exceed thirty feet. At that depth her speed is about 8 knots. The air is quite "breathable" for four hours, but in case of emergency the crew can remain closed in for seventy hours without danger.

The men love the life. With the officers they are as one family, sharing everything equally, including the dangers, which are not much to speak of, provided every one does his duty. JURIES IN ENGLAND.

They Get Through Their Work Quickly and With Little Fuss. The working of the British jury system exhibits a marked contrast with that of our own. It is possible that my experience in British courts was exceptional, but in not a single instance did I see a juror challenged or rejected. In all of the courts requiring juries the necessary number of men were present, and they were sworn in without question. In the sheriff's deputy court in Scotland the presiding at the rate of 10 cents per has judge gave notice to the jury that he expected to adjourn the court at 2 o'clock and stated that if they could all remain until that hour he would at once dismiss the men who had been called for a second panel. The jurors conferred together and decided to remain till I o'clock, whereupon the judge notified the other men to appear at 12:30. The one jury impaneled for the morning session rendered six verdiets in cases involving prosecutions for thefts, fraud and burglary. in the court of quarter sessions at Taunton, England, I saw a single jury in one day render eleven verdicts. 1 found that it was customary in the several sorts of court that I attended for the same jury to act in successive cases. In no instance did I see a jury leave their seats to make up their verdict. Usually the issue before them established by law which no testator was made so plain that all who gave attention knew in advance what the decision would be. I made note of an pose of half his property according to exceptional instance of delay when the court was forced to wait nine minutes for the report of the jury. In this case the judge who gave the instructions third of their property, those with three was himself in doubt as to what the verdict ought to be.

A Scottish jury consists of fifteen twelve, and unanimity is required. But I noted no difference as to practical results in the two countries. The twelve men in the English jury were as prompt and certain in their action as were the eight out of fifteen in the Scottish jury .- McClure's Magazine.

"IN THE HOUR OF DEATH."

A Note on the Authorship of a Well Known Poem.

The question is often asked in newspapers and magazines, "Who wrote the poem beginning 'In the hour of death, after this life's whim?"

The answer is given that nothing is known of the author. It is true this peem was published with only the Initials of the writer in the University Magazine in 1879. But I hold the manuscript of the poem, and I have also Blackmore's letter that accompanled it. Blackmore has been so long dead I do not feel that there can be any harm in giving his letter to the public. I subjoin an exact copy of it; also of his poem.

AGNES E. COOK. "Teddn., Jan. 5, 1879. "My Dear Sir-Having lately been at the funeral of a most dear relation, I was there again (in a dream) last night and heard mourners sing the lines inclosed, which impressed me so that I was able to write them without change of a word this morning. 1 never heard or read them before to my knowledge. They do not look so well on paper as they sounded. But if you like to print them here they are, only please do not print my name beyond initials or send me money for them. With all good wishes to Mrs. Cook and yourself, very truly yours, No. 27-7:28 p. m.-For Shenaedosh & Local Stations. "R. D. BLACKMORE. "K. Cook Esqre LL. D."
